

Ismaili Women—Then and Now

The Ismailia Women's Organisation are staging an exhibition entitled 'Ismaili Women - Then and Now' at the Ismaili Centre on March 11-15. The aim of the display is to give an insight into the way of life of Ismaili women and how they made the transition from India, across to Africa and then to the West. Preceding the exhibition is a drama presentation on Saturday March 7, at Logan Hall, London.
